Volunteer and Service Center

The Volunteer & Service Center at Cal State Fullerton was established in 1995 as the Community Service Action Team. Last year alone, over 2000 students were placed in community and service-learning sites volunteering over 110,000 hours to more than 5000 community members through the Titans 100K Hours of Service Campaign. Students' commitment to volunteerism is on the rise nationwide and at CSUF. If you are looking for ways to serve your community and make an impact on the lives of those in need, the Volunteer Service Center can help you find the right program. You can volunteer with an existing program at a non-profit agency that interests you, participate in special one-time community service projects, coordinate one of our existing programs as a project director or create your own program.

For more information contact the Cal State Fullerton Volunteer & Service Center at Titan Student Union Rm. 2, (714) 278-7623.

Counseling and Psychological Services

PERSONAL COUNSELING: CAPS offers free and confidential brief counseling, assessment and referral, and crisis intervention designed to assist currently enrolled Cal State Fullerton students with personal or psychological problems which interfere with their educational progress. Students seek counseling for depression, anxiety, stress symptoms, as well as relationship, family or situational problems. The counselors at CAPS are Licensed Psychologists or Marriage and Family Therapists. Although there is considerable demand for counseling services, we try to meet with each student as soon as possible after their initial contact with the center. In case of emergency, students are seen without delay. Several on-going therapy groups are also offered to help students cope with stresses or issues affecting them.

WORKSHOPS: A wide variety of workshops is also offered, focusing on issues such as transition and change, anxiety, relationships, depression, stress management, substance abuse, eating disorders, self-esteem and creativity.
