Finals Week Do’s and Don’ts

By Alexa Hernandez

The Do’s and Don’ts studying for finals

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Do</th>
<th>Don’t</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Study NOW! Studying for finals can not be done over night, the sooner you start, the more confident you will feel.</td>
<td>Wait until the last minute to study. We all procrastinate and you can not even say you don’t. We literally sit in the common rooms together until 2 am finishing papers and studying for exams.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Study with a group that you know will help you understand concepts and motivate you to get a good grade.</td>
<td>Study with your best friend that will just ramble about things other than school. Also, do not use this as an opportunity to talk to a cute person. You may be on a study date, but are you really studying or just trying to win them over? (Trust I have done this before, I am talking from experience.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Highlight important information that you think will be on the final.</td>
<td>Highlight everything. What’s the point of highlighting if your whole notebook is highlighted yellow?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Put your phone on “do not disturb” or turn it off completely.</td>
<td>Scroll through instagram, refresh twitter, or post a picture of you studying on snapchat. Social media and phones are our generation’s most distracting device. Do not fall victim to being on your phone more than you are studying.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Give yourself small breaks so you have a chance to digest information. Be efficient and use your time wisely.</td>
<td>Study for 12 hours straight because by the 4th or 5th hour do you really know what you are studying? But, do not study for twenty minutes and then take an hour break.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Get some sleep. If you are up at 5am the night before your 8am final, what’s the point? You already procrastinated and now you’re just gonna be exhausted going into the final.</td>
<td>Get less than 8 hours of sleep before your final. You have heard this time and time again but it is actually proven that you learn during your sleep. If you have ever taken a psychology course, when you sleep your brain takes information from your short term memory into your long term memory. So, if you’re not sleeping you are not giving your body this chance to move information around.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

All of this is probably information that you have heard before, however it’s all true. At the end of the day though, relax and remember that it is just a letter grade and won’t mean too much more than some letter later in life. Take a deep breath and good luck to everyone with finals!
